

Name: _____

Personification

Personification is a literary device in which you give human qualities to a nonhuman thing. It's an effective device because we all like to interact with each other, and personification can help us understand abstract ideas on those terms.

The weather in “The Storm” is frequently described using personification. Here’s an example:

“The wind shook the house in its giant grip.”

Find three other examples from the story and list them below:

- 1.
- 2.
- 3.

Now on your own create three more examples of personification describing a bad storm.

- 1.
- 2.
- 3.
